Request for Sponsorship of the Central Texas ACS Centennial Celebration

The Central Texas Section of the American Chemical Society would like your help in celebrating our Centennial on Friday, 10 November 2017, at The Oasis on Lake Travis in Austin, Texas.

Since its inception in 1917, the Central Texas Section of the ACS has been home to many chemists who have made fundamental contributions to research in both industry and academia, and who have served in high level administrative positions, including as university presidents. The Central Texas Section was the first section to host an ACS regional meeting in 1946.

Our Centennial Celebration will begin with a poster session, featuring the work of local undergraduates as well as the history of the Central Texas Section over the past 100 years. We'll continue the festivities with dinner and presentations including keynote speaker, Dr. Nancy Gray, Director of the Gordon Research Conferences.

We hope to make this celebration as enjoyable and unique as possible. To do this we ask for your sponsorship. We have included below some suggestions. We invite your organization to present a poster or have an informational table or exhibit during the poster session. We expect significant participation from the local universities, and from local industry.

The local section gratefully acknowledges support from the ACS Local Section Innovative Grants Program and from the Senior Chemists Committee.
